

FAASTeam presents:

Flying Tips For Older Pilots

We will discuss how to identify decreasing skills necessary to safe flying as we age, and examine how to offset the loss of skills and abilities and continue to be a safe pilot.

This seminar is divided into three parts. First will be a discussion on how aging effects the body and brain of the human being. We will examine how the body and brain changes and how it impacts our behavior. Next will be specifics regarding how the aging process effects the performance of flying a plane. We will consider how specific aspects of aging impact on specific facets of flying. The last portion of this seminar will cover what older pilots can do to remain safe, manage risk better, and retain insurability as a pilot and aircraft owner.

While this seminar is about aging aviators, younger pilots should find much of value to them.
